The computers and the smart phones. The key to freedom or a spy in your private life?

Nowadays it's impossible to imagine humans without the modern technologies. It seems that everybody starting from primary school has a smartphone. And people say that it makes their lives easier. For example one smartphone or a computer can function like a calculator, a book or a TV. And of course there is an opportunity to join the Internet using your smartphone or a computer. And today I would think about how safety and good for people is using new technologies and the Internet.

In my opinion new technologies have different effects to people. For example computer and the Internet are useful for student's life as a resource of the information for the education. But there are also people who have problems with modern technologies. For example people who can't control their time spent in the Internet or in the computer and that is bad.

And another question is whether modern technologies and the Internet led more or less freedom? I think that the the Internet gives you a great opportunity to find all information you need and it gives you freedom.

But there are many "sites" "spies" in the Internet. For example any sites can give your private information to bad people. And I can also see any freedom in "gadget mania" that is a usual thing today.

Finishing, I should say that new technologies are very positive for society because you can use it in different ways like self-education or etc. But it's always important to remember that you need to be careful using the Internet and don't spend too much time using your computer or your smartphone.

Dear Administration of Journal

I want to give you a new article about new technology. New technology are very popular in our days. But teenagers use it too much. They can surf the internet all day, which is not good for their health. You need to go to town grass every hour after surfing the internet. If you want will not do this, you can hurt your eyes and maybe even lose it! On the other hand, in the internet a lot of different people games with etc. There you can find a partner who can become your best friend. In the internet there is free access to the books, movies and music. Internet is giving us more freedom than we could have ever could (not in China). You can find a tutor, if you tend to not understand something in school. Internet teaches you how to communicate with different people, maybe even with the people from other countries. New technology evaluate very positive for society. Society walks into the future, we teach'd how to live with internet, and its it is great! I think very very soon we will be communicating with each other, even without internet. Maybe in space. There is so much we can do with the new technology.

Nowadays, with a big technological breakdown, more and more cutting-edge innovations are developed. The most prominent are mobile phones, social networking sites and internet. Some people think that new technologies such as mobile phones, internet, social networks constrain the freedom, however I believe that they don't. For me, it is the best way to share information, and receive positive emotions.

When the first mobile phone was developed, it has contributed tremendously to society. It became easy to create social networking account and start sharing memorable moments to other users. Since that moment people have been publishing their ideas, conversations and making on various topics and even shy people found new friends. Great example of freedom appearance is young blogger MrBeast. YouTube became an essential part of his life. He had an idea to make the content but without special platforms it was impossible. Creating content provided him with confidence and a belief. Not only freedom was provided for society, it provides it nowadays. Internet user has full access to possibility to find information on different topics, watch films and videos online, order food and more. It made people's life easier and eliminated hardships.

Taking everything into account, development of e-business, mobile phones and social networking sites provided people with more freedom and opportunities.
